The Central Message . . .

- is the lesson the characters learned.
- tells the big idea of the story.
- can also be called the moral of the story.
- · can be more than one lesson learned.
- is the "heart" of the story.

Example

Hammer Time

It was Ted's first time with a hammer. He tried to hammer a nail into wood for a school project. The nail began to bend and mess up the entire project. Ted said, "I can't do this." His teacher, Mr. Johnson, said it was too early to give up. So Ted tried again and again. Finally, the nail went into the wood. "You were right!" Ted said. "Practice makes perfect!"

What is the central message of this story?

- A. Do not give up right away.
- B. Do things one time only.
- C. It is hard to hammer a nail.
- D. Always follow your teacher's directions.

Tony's Lesson

It was Tony's first time playing with the Tigers. He really wanted to show his team that he was a good player. Tony stepped up to bat. After five pitches, he struck out. He felt horrible. He let his new team down. He dropped the bat and wanted to quit. He put his head down on his knees. Then he saw Jess, Holly, and Francis waving from the bench.

- "Great try!" Jess said.
- "You'll do better next time," Holly said.
- "Welcome to the team!" Francis said.

Tony felt better being on a team with people who cheered for him. Maybe his teammates cared more about having fun than winning the game.

What is the central message of this story?

- A. Always listen to your parents
- B. Practice makes perfect
- C. Friends can help get you through challenges
- D. Don't eat before a big game

Crow and Squirrel

Crow and Squirrel lived in the same tree. They ate the same nuts. One day, there were no more nuts in their tree.

"You ate all the nuts!" Squirrel said.

"No, you ate the most nuts," said Crow.
They yelled at each other all day long. Then they got more and more hungry. Finally, Squirrel said, "This fight is silly."
Crow agreed. "Let's get nuts from another tree!" he said. So Squirrel and Crow picked nuts together. Soon they had more nuts than ever before!

The Compromise

Angie wanted to play checkers, so she asked her sister, Nina to play. Nina said she'd play only if she could be red. The two sisters couldn't agree and argued about who would be red. Both loved the color red. It was their favorite color. Finally, Angie had a compromise. Nina could be red first, then she would be red next. That idea worked, and the girls played for hours. It was a lot better than arguing and not having any fun at all.

The Scary Troll

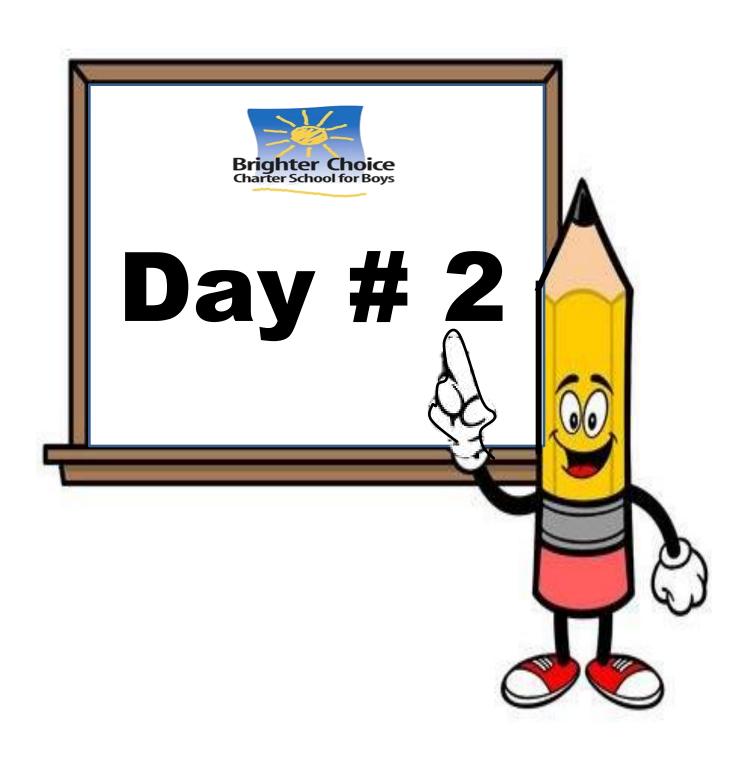

There once was a scary troll who lived under a bridge. All of the animals that lived nearby didn't want to cross over because they were afraid of the troll. The troll was always saying he would eat them. One day, a brave billy goat crossed the bridge. He was very surprised when nothing happened. Then the billy goat heard a crying sound coming from below the bridge. The troll was so upset. He was lonesome and wanted to make some friends. He was tired of being lonely. The troll said he would change his ways and not scare anyone who tried crossing the bridge. The billy goat went to tell the animals the good news. They didn't know if they could trust the troll. The billy goat convinced everyone to give the troll a chance.

All of the animals decided to cross the bridge to see what would happen. As they approached the bridge, the troll popped up with a basket full of muffins to share. The animals were glad they gave the troll a chance to be kind. They forgave the troll, and he was never lonely or mean again.

Directions: Read the fable below. Determine what the central message is (what the characters learn) and then choose the best statement that supports the main idea.

The Ant and the Grasshopper Aesop: Greece

One day a grasshopper sang and played his fiddle as he watched a group of ants march by carrying heavy food. They grunted and sweat as they carried corn, wheat, and fruit. "What are you doing?" asked the grasshopper. Without stopping, the lead ant told him that they were taking food to their home in the hill for winter. The grasshopper told them to stop and play with him instead, but the ants told him no. They told him to start getting ready for the winter too. "Winter is far away, and it's a beautiful day." grasshopper said, as he went off with his fiddle. The weather soon became cold. Snow fell. The grasshopper found himself hungry and cold. He saw the ants handing out corn they had collected that summer. The grasshopper begged for food. The ants couldn't believe the grasshopper had been so foolish. They shook their heads, and went on with their jobs.

What is the moral or lesson of this story?

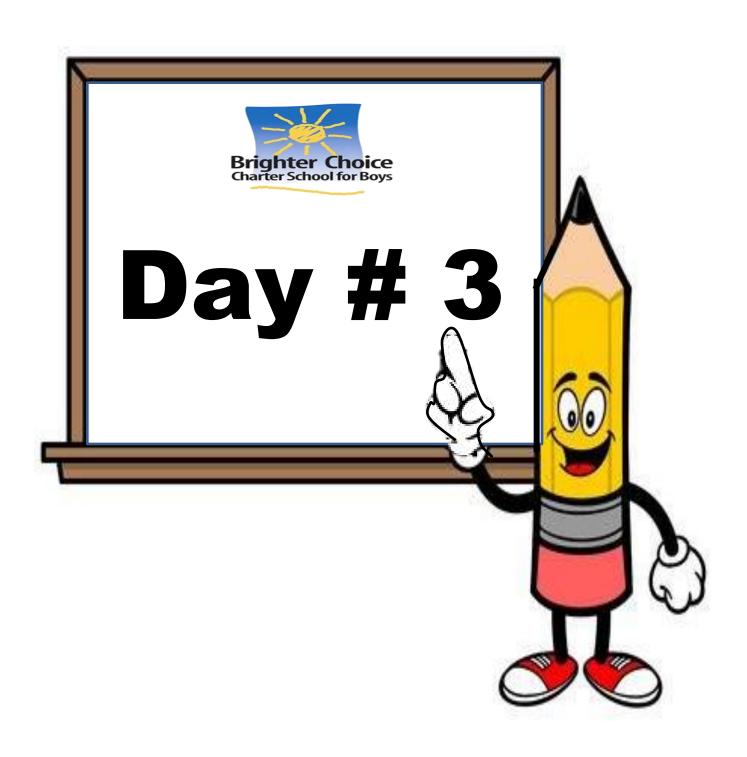

- There is a time for work, and a time for play
- C. Grasshoppers are lazy

B. Summer is a time for play

D. Summer is a time for work

Tom and the Leprechaun

Tom was walking through a meadow one day when he heard clackety, clackety, clack. He peeked over the stone wall, and what should he see but a tiny leprechaun tapping on a pair of shoes. Tom knew if he could catch him, he'd have to tell Tom where his gold was buried. He also knew he could never take his eyes off of him, or he would disappear. He leaped over the wall, and grabbed the wee man. "Give me your gold!" he demanded!

The wee man agreed, and pointed across the field. After an hour of walking they came to a large field of millions of ragweed plants. "There" said the wee man. "Under that weed." Tom didn't have a spade, so he tied his red handkerchief around the plant, let the wee man go, and ran home to get the spade. When he returned, what did he see? Every one of the millions of plants were tied with a red handkerchief! All were exactly the same as his own. There was no way he could dig up the entire field, so he went home, ever so angry at that leprechaun! What is the lesson of this story?

- A. Never trust a leprechaun
- C. Always travel with a spade
- B. Keep leprechauns in a bag

I just can't believe the queen would treat me so badly. How can she be jealous of me? I have been very kind to her and a good stepdaughter. I can't help it if I have skin as white as snow, lips as red as ruby and hair as black as the night sky. I was just born this way!

When she ordered the huntsman to take me to the woods to kill me, I thought how evil she had become. Luckily the woodsmen let me escape. But I was not so lucky when the queen disguised herself as an old woman and tried to poison me, what was she thinking!

I am furious and filled with envy at the fact that Snow White is considered prettier than I! The magic mirror is wrong in my opinion. Why anyone can see I am the most beautiful woman in the entire kingdom and perhaps the world. This is so unfair!

How can you blame me if I gave orders to kill Snow White? I must preserve my reputation as the most beautiful woman I the kingdom. As a Queen, I and will have anything that I want.

We think the Trolls is being very unfair to us. There is only one way to get across the river and that is by crossing the bridge. We'd be more than happy to pay the toll because we are very hungry. We tried to be nice but he is determined to eat us.

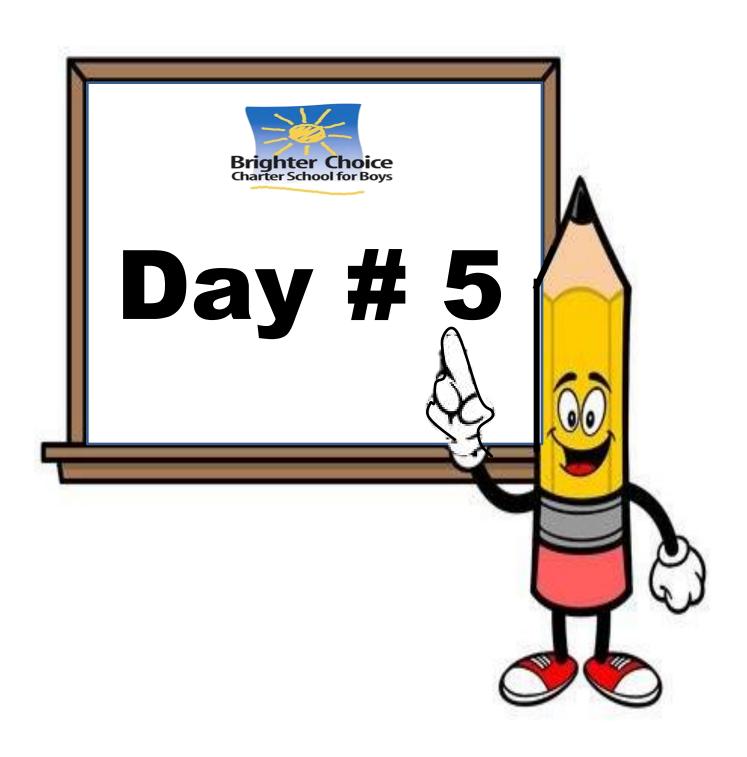

It is so nice to have a big brother who can defend us. He should know better than to pick on little guys like us. We think the Troll may have been having a bad day, but he could just be grumpy all the time. At least he knows, he can't stop us from crossing the bridge.

Of course I was hungry! I had not eaten since winter began! It's not every day I can feast on goat stew! Over the years, many have learned to fear me because I have such a large appetite. But I can't help that my stomach is always growling.

I live under the bridge because no one wants me near them. Everyone says I am hideous and have a foul odor. I am a troll! What do you expect? I think the goats tricked me! The biggest Billy Goat Gruff is a bully!

1. Hi! My name is Goldilocks! I was stumbling my way through the woods when I came across a cute little cottage. I was feeling very hungry and tired so I figured I would go in for a meal and a nap before I continued on my journey through the woods. When I got to the house and knocked, no one answered, I decided to go in any way!

The house was very cute and had plenty of options for food to eat and places to sit and sleep! It took me awhile to find the best food and bed, but when I did, I was full and happy! I rested for a while before these bears came into the house! They were yelling and chased me out of the house. How rude! They don't know how to be kind to strangers!

2. Hi! My name is Goldilocks I was stumbling my way through the woods when I came across a cute little cottage. I was feeling very hungry and tired so I figured I would go knock on the door to see if someone was home to help me. I knocked a few times but no one answered. I figured I would wait awhile in that area to see if anyone came home.

Later on, I saw a family of bears come home to the house, they looked so friendly! I decided to walk back up and ask them for a quick meal and a place to rest. They let me inside and fed me and let me sleep. I was so grateful to these kind bears who took such nice care of me, and I am so glad I waited patiently!

Treading Water

From On the Trail An Outdoor Book for Girls By Lina Beard and Adelia Belle Beard

DIRECTIONS: Underline the main idea in each paragraph. Write the supporting details on the lines.

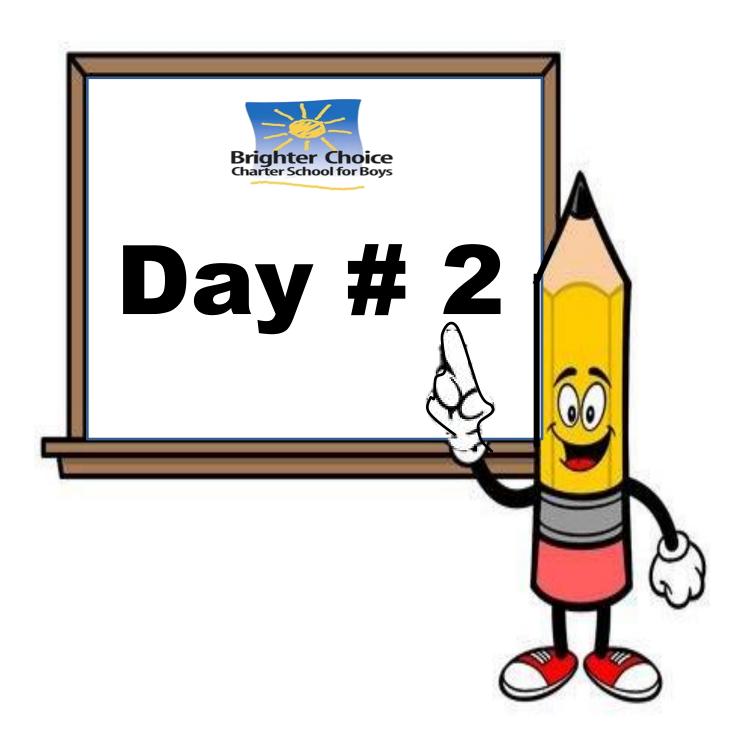

In treading water you maintain an upright position as in walking. Someone says: "To tread water is like running up-stairs rapidly." Try running up-stairs and you will get the leg movement. While the water is up to your neck, bend your elbows and bring your hands to the surface, then keep the palms pressing down the water. The principle is the same as in swimming. When you swim you force the water back with your hands and feet and so send your body forward. When you tread water you force the water down with your hands and feet and so send your body, or keep it, up.

It is even possible to stand quite still in deep water when you learn to keep your balance. All you do is to spread out your arms at the sides on a line with your shoulders and keep your head well back. You may go below the surface once or twice until you learn, but you will come up again and the feat is well worth while. What an outdoor girl should strive for is to become thoroughly at home in the water so that she may enter it fearlessly and know what to do when she is there.

How Great Ideas Happen

When we read a wonderful book, it's easy to imagine that the story sprang, fully developed, from the author's imagination, but that is not always the case—sometimes great ideas are accidents; and sometimes they are the result of adapting to things that didn't work out the way that we had hoped. Have you ever read the book Where the Wild Things Are by Maurice Sendak? The story of how that book came to be what we know and love is a perfect example of "accidents" and "adaptation".

The original title for Where the Wild Things Are was going to be Where the Wild Horses Are. As you can probably guess, the story featured fillies, foals and mares. Maurice Sendak had a very good editor named Ursula Nordstrom who had edited many classic books you have probably read or heard of, like The Giving Tree, Goodnight Moon, Harold and the Purple Crayon and Charlotte's Web.

Nordstrom really loved the proposed title for Sendak's book. She thought that it was very poetic. But when Sendak began to illustrate the book, he discovered that there was a problem: Sendak couldn't draw horses. He had to tell Nordstrom that he wasn't going to be able to finish the Wild Horses book after all. Nordstrom was not pleased.

"But I can't draw horses," he tried to explain.

"Maurice, what can you draw?" she asked.

"Things," he said, and "things"—wild things—is what he drew.

It's important to always try when you have an idea. Sometimes you might fail; but in that failing, it just may turn out that what you end up with is better than what you had first hoped that it would be.

Main Idea

- Great ideas sometimes happen by:
 - A. accident
 - B. adaptation
 - C. accident and adaptation
- Where the Wild Things Are is the book that it is today because of:
 - A. accident
 - B. adaptation
 - C. accident and adaptation

Significant Details

- Where the Wild Things Are was originally going to be about:
 - A. horses
 - B. dogs
 - C. wild things
- Sendak drew the wild things because:
 - A. his editor asked him to
 - B. it was what he imagined
 - C. he couldn't draw horses

FIND THE MAIN IDEA:

Butterflies

Find the main idea in the paragraph below. Write the main idea in your own words in the space provided. Then, write a concluding sentence for this paragraph.

The Vicercy Butterfly

You know that butterflies are insects that glide through the air on colorful wings. Did you know they are also masters of disguise? For example, the viceroy butterfly has evolved to look almost exactly like the monarch, a poisonous butterfly that predators know to avoid. Though the viceroy itself is not poisonous, birds and other predators steer clear, mistaking it for the monarch.

Another master of disguise is the buckeye butterfly. The buckeye sports "eyespots," target-shaped spots resembling eyes, on the tips of its wings. Predators will aim for an eyespot, believing it to be the head of the buckeye, but will instead end up with just a wing tip, allowing the buckeye to escape.

Learning about the Ocean

Underline or highlight the main idea in the text.

Look back at the text to complete the sentences at the bottom of the page.

The ocean is important to all living things. More than 70 percent of Earth's surface is covered by oceans. If you saw Earth from outer space, it would look similar to a blue marble. That's a lot of water! The ocean is the Earth's largest habitat.

There is only one world ocean and five ocean basins. The water in the world ocean flows between the ocean basins, just like air moves around on land.

About one million types of animals live in the ocean. Different animals live in different parts of the ocean depending on what they need to stay alive.

It's important that humans take care of the ocean so it stays healthy for years to come.

One way to help the ocean is to pick up trash on the beach.

The ocean is important to all living things. Over half of the Earth's surface is covered by the ocean. Scientists have only explored part of the ocean. There is still so much left to explore!

As you read this story, look for the main idea of each paragraph. These can be put together to make a summary of the whole story.

Whales are the biggest creatures that have ever lived on the earth. They are even bigger than the biggest dinosaurs were. Scientists think that whales once walked on land. They believe this because whales are not fish—they are mammals.

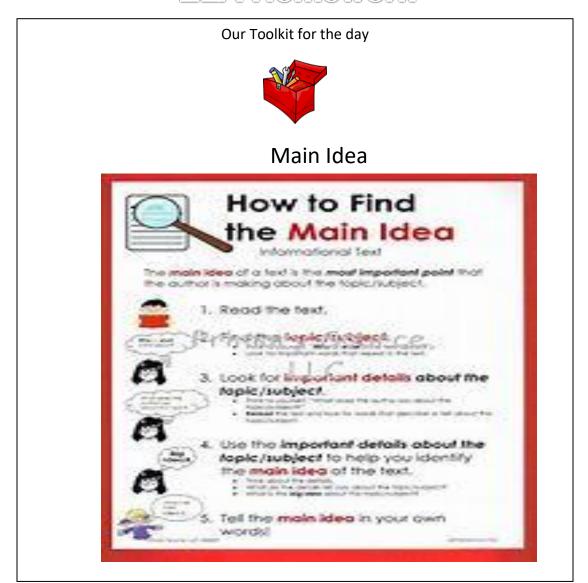

Not only are whales the biggest creatures on earth, they also are some of the smartest. They live in family groups. They communicate with each other, and hunt for food in groups. Mother whales keep their babies close by, and give them gentle taps to guide them in the right direction. Sometimes a whale will lift its head out of the water just to take a look around.

Because whales are mammals, they must breathe air. They breathe through a blowhole on their back. However, they can hold their breath for a very long time. Some kinds of whales can hold their breath for two hours at a time. Whales never really sleep. Instead, they swim along with their blowhole above the water.

Many kinds of whales migrate to warmer waters during the winter months. During the summer, they build up a layer of fat so that during migration they do not have to eat. Bears also eat during the summer to build up a layer of fat so that they can sleep during the winter. Some scientists think the prehistoric whales may have looked like gigantic bears.

- 1. What is the main idea of the first paragraph?
 - Whales are bigger than the dinosaurs were.
 - B. Whales are the biggest creatures on earth.
 - C. Whales are mammals.
- 2. What is the main idea of the second paragraph?
 - Whales are some of the smartest creatures on earth.
 - B. Whales live in family groups.
 - Mother whales keep their babies close by.
- 3. What is the main idea of the third paragraph?
 - A. Some kinds of whales can hold their breath for a very long time.
 - B. Whales must breathe air.
 - C. Whales breathe through a blowhole.
- 4. What is the main idea of the fourth paragraph?
 - A. Bears sleep during the winter.
 - Whales do not eat while they are migrating.
 - C. Many kinds of whales migrate for the winter.

Your Turn

The main idea of a story is what the whole story is mostly about.

The details are small pieces of information that make the story more interesting.

As you read this story, think about what the whole story is mostly about.

The Crab and His Mother

A Mother Crab was watching her son play on the beach. Like all crabs, the Young Crab walked along sideways. He walked along to the left, then he walked along to the right. The Mother Crab saw the lobsters on the other side of the beach. The lobsters were all walking straight forward. The Mother Crab said to her son, "Why do you walk sideways like that, my son? It would be much better to walk straight forward."

The Young Crab said to his mother, "That is true, dear mother. Show me how to walk straight, and I will follow your example."

The Mother Crab tried and tried, but she could not walk straight forward. She finally gave up trying, when she saw how foolish she had been to find fault with her son.

- What is this whole story mostly about?
 - We learn best by example.
 - B. The lobsters walked straight forward.
 - C. The Young Crab learned to walk straight forward.
- 2. Which of these is a small piece of information from the story that makes the story more interesting?
 - The Mother Crab walked up and down the beach, looking for her son.
 - The Young Crab walked along to the left, then he walked along to the right.
 - C. The Young Crab sat by his mother, watching the lobsters walking around on the beach.
- 3. Which of these is a small piece of information from the story that makes the story more interesting?
 - A. The Mother Crab laughed when she saw her son walking sideways.
 - B. The Mother Crab told the lobsters that it would be better if they walked sideways.
 - C. The Mother Crab told her son that it would be better to walk straight forward.
- 4. Which of these is a small piece of information from the story that makes the story more interesting?
 - The Mother Crab showed the Young Crab how to walk straight forward.
 - The Mother Crab tried and tried, but she could not walk straight forward.
 - C. The Mother Crab asked the lobsters to show the Young Crab how to walk straight forward.
