Big Bear

Little Bee

The forest

He cried, "Little Bee, you know I could kill you with my giant claws! I will let you live because you make honey, which I love to eat."

Immediately, Little Bee flew to the hunter and buzzed in his ear.

The hunter cried, "Leave me alone!" and ran away.

Little Bee buzzed close to Big Bear. Suddenly, Big Bear woke up.

Big Bear cried, "Little Bee, you saved my life! Thank you!"

Later, Little Bee heard a noise. It was a hunter. He had a bow and arrow, and he was ready to shoot Big Bear!

Little Bee said, "I promised you I would help you. I am little, but I can do great things, too."

“The Bear and the Bee”

Once there was a pollinator named Little Bee. Little Bee lived in the forest.

Little Bee was buzzing by when he spotted Big Bear. Big Bear was taking a nap.

Little Bee buzzed close to Big Bear. Suddenly, Big Bear woke up.

He cried, “Little Bee, you know I could kill you with my giant claws! I will let you live because you make honey, which I love to eat.”

Little Bee thought. He said, “Big Bear, you are much larger than me. But one day, you might need my help.”

Big Bear laughed and said, “You are tiny! How could a silly little insect ever help a powerful creature like me?”

Little Bee thought again. He did not say anything. He just buzzed by and flew away.

Later, Little Bee heard a noise. It was a hunter. He had a bow and arrow, and he was ready to shoot Big Bear!

Immediately, Little Bee flew to the hunter and buzzed in his ear. The hunter was scared. He cried, “Leave me alone!” and ran away.

Big Bear cried, “Little Bee, you saved my life! Thank you!”

Little Bee said, “I promised you I would help you. I am little, but I can do great things, too.”

Dragon

Legends of dragons are a part of many cultures around the world.

Most dragons do have similarities including; hatching from eggs, breathing fire, poisonous bites, scales and bat-like wings. Dragons look like large reptiles with very hard scales all over their bodies.

Legends say that dragons love treasure and will hide their hoard in a cave and guard it greedily. The treasure is said to be cursed and bad luck would fall on the person to steal from a dragon's hoard.

Dragons are often said to be wise and like people, can be good or evil. The good dragons often protect humans and help them. The bad dragons burn down villages and their fields of crops.
